BR. CASE # 1611767

Crabcat Studio, Washington State

The tools are adapted from, inspired by PNW 18/19th century tribal master pieces of Salish Sea Spindle Whorl art. Years have gone into the evolution of the master plates, molds and patterns. 8,000 hours of Joseph Illg's time investment. We were on the cusp with corporate gift clients. Currently outreach to them discontinued. Supply of this stock is nuclear and vitally essential. They represent an historic meshing of Art, Culture and Technology. This inventory must continue for Crabcat/JPI to continue to survive and thrive as a small business with cash flow positivity. We've invested our house equity, etc. Our growing clientele base including, Tribal Museum Stores, Retail Gallery Venues, other private clients and organizations expect us to have supply for them.

This capability is an indispensable foundation for our endeavor. After a brutal recession we were just getting our footing again.

In the event NTWM is incapable or unwilling to produce and deliver art medallion stock we shall, for survival sake, have to make arrangements with an alternative minting facility. For that trustee Calvert must return our die tools. Our business is now disrupted, our livelihood jeopardized.

Please give us some cause for optimism. If your office could provide a remedy for our dilemma/situation/crisis we along with clients (past and present numbering over #1000) would be relieved and reassured that there is yet some compassion and humanity to buffer what all too often appears as an unjust cold blooded business arena. We still hold out hope that collaboration symbiosis and mutual benefit can win out.

Respectfully,

J. Illg

My neighbor, Joe Illg, has deep roots in the the Puget sound region, and for the past 20 years or so has been a prominent native inspired sculpture and repousse artist. His father was a marine biologist at the San Juan research center, and his mother was an artist and art teacher. His family generously bequeathed Illg preserve, eight hundred feet of shoreline on 11 acres to the San Juan Island preservation trust. His art is displayed by or sold by, the Duamish, the Muckleshoot, the Jamestown S'Klallam, & the Snohomish tribes. Over the past year he has had to deal with a series of serious health, professional, and personal setbacks that have made it extremely difficult for him to get by, culminating in the impending loss of his house to the tennis court next door. I'm hoping to be able to extend to him a helping hand. WITH STPT, NO RECIPROCATION, COOPERATION

First a bit about Joe's health. Joe has chronic lymphocytic leukemia, which requires, even with medicare, $300 a month in medications. This eats up the entirety of his $300/month social security payments, meaning that his business is how he pays for everything else. In addition to his leukemia, he has severe osteo arthritis in his left knee, making it difficult to get around. His macular degeneration which requires Avastin injections so that he doesn't slowly go blind. He's also got Dupuytren's contracture in his ring fingers, which prevents him from extending them. He has managed to work through all of these things, since he needs to do so to support himself. This was fine for several years until he was hit with both a business and housing crisis.

In May 2016, the Northwest Territorial Mint, who Joe had contracted to make for him the pendants that made up most of his business, went bankrupt. GOOGLE SEE NEWS NWTM BANKRUPT

At first, he was still able to get pendants from them, but by 2017 he was unable to get any stock and, even worse, was unable to get his dies released by the bankruptcy court. He drained his savings through 2017 fighting to get his dies back and transferred to a new vendor. He only recently managed this in the past few months and is still working to get good quality product. In addition he spent 30-40 hours a week repousseing copper in his studio, on his feet, on his bad knee to make up for his lost income. NOW DESTITUTE - PLEASE HELP

Just as Joe started to get back on his feet with a new supplier, new problems came his way. After a slipshod repair by the local mechanic, the transmission on his van went out, and he was forced to purchase a replacement car, since he travels to art shows and fairs to sell his copper work.

As a final nail in the coffin, Joe found out recently that he will be forced to leave his home and studio of the past 5 years, as his house is being knocked down to make room for a tennis club.

I'm asking for help for Joe so that he can find a new home and studio and pay for the move, pay off the debts he's accumulated over a year of severely reduced income, and rebuild his savings.

2019 VERY URGENT NEED ASAP A LITTLE 1/2 BR BUNGALOW KING OR SNOHOMISH CO. LIVING TRUST OK. ITS ONLY REASONABLE JOSEPH PAUL ILLG SHOULD NOT BE OVERWHELMED WITH ANXIETY FACING HOMELESSNESS AND THE END OF HIS WORKLIFE AFTER ALL THE PERSONAL & PROFESSIONAL SACRIFICE OF LAST 25 YR
